

ABSTRACT

A method, apparatus and system enable users to utilize their personal computers ("PCs") to manage incoming cell phone calls. A cell phone may be coupled to a PC, and the PC may be configured to notify the user of incoming calls or to automatically respond to incoming calls. If the user is notified, an application on the PC may enable the user to view information associated with the call, and select a response option to handle the call. If the PC is configured to respond automatically, the PC may select an appropriate response for the incoming call.